TESTOSTERONE FOR MEN

Along with treating women, Gregory W. Childrey, M.D. is treating men with testosterone pellets. Testosterone pellets are the only method of testosterone therapy that gives sustained testosterone levels throughout the day, day after day for four to six months without any “roller coaster” effect. All other forms of testosterone therapy cannot deliver such hormone levels.

Testosterone deficiency will produce fatigue, lack of mental acuity, loss of libido, and will affect the ability to achieve an erection. The injectable and transdermal forms of therapy produce “roller coaster” blood levels of testosterone. Pellet therapy produces the sustained levels of testosterone that the body will use providing optimum intracellular hormone health. This therapy is the only form of hormone therapy that gives a sustained level of the hormone that men and women need. The fact that the type of testosterone used is bio-identical makes this therapy ideal for all men wanting to use a natural hormone replacement therapy.

This therapy has been applied to treat men using testosterone pellets with excellent results for over 40 years. There have been no reports of any serious side effects when using bio-identical testosterone pellet implants. In fact, the literature is full of health enhancements derived from higher testosterone levels in symptomatic men. In the past, male and female athletes have abused synthetic non-human testosterone type drugs. When they took large quantities of synthetic non-bio-identical testosterone (including methyl testosterone), they incurred heart and liver problems, elevated cholesterol, cancers, or other health problems. However, implanted testosterone that is used in our bio-identical hormonal therapy has NOT been associated with these problems.
